Printing Partners Storytellers Theater Storytellers' Biographies

Celestine Bloomfield started officially calling herself a storyteller in 1977. She has been an audience favorite since the first festival in 1988 due to her masterful sense of timing, rich voice that captivates, and her fluid gestures that invite audiences into her space. She is currently a media specialist at Indian Creek Elementary and loves to tell folktales. Session: 1, 2

Donald Davis was born in the Southern Appalachian Mountains of North Carolina. Davis shares stories about his family and his own experiences growing up in a small town. Known as the “father of family stories,” he is a prolific author and recording artist. To learn more about Donald Davis visit www.ddavisstoryteller.com. Session: 1, 2

Combining the elements of storytelling, mime and physical comedy, Antonio Rocha, a native of Brazil, takes listeners on a wild ride through the jungles of Brazil featuring animal tales and ecological tales, as well as world folktales and myths. To learn more about Antonio Rocha visit www.storyinmotion.com. Session: 3, 4.

Bob Sander's easy, understated style conveys keen insight and wit. He interlaces his stories with audience participation and occasional folk music interludes. Whether he is sharing a humorous family story or rich world folktale, Bob's audiences are always satisfied. To learn more about Bob Sander visit, www.bobsander.com. Session: 3, 4
